VOL. II. NUMBER 4. WHOLE NO. 56.

BLOOMFIELD, NEW JERSEY, SATURDAY, MAY 17, 1884.

Price, $2.00 PER YEAR.

THE BLOOMFIELD CITIZEN

A WEEKLY JOURNAL
OF
LOCAL NEWS AND HOME READING.

Entered at the Post Office at Bloomfield as second class matter.

Office: Over the Post Office.

Office Hours: From 7 to 9 o'clock P. M. Monday and Friday, and every evening from 7.30 to 8 o'clock.

Special Notice.

Mr. Charles R. Bourne has been engaged by the Bloomfield Publishing Company to attend to the general publishing business of THE CITIZEN. He is, therefore, authorized to solicit advertisements and subscriptions, collect bills, and to transact all business connected with the publishing of the paper.

ABOUT TOWN.

The raising of the bell tower was begun on Thursday.

Mr. Robert M. Stiles has returned from his Southern trip.

One of Passaic's unlicensed liquor sellers has been convicted and lodged in jail.

The lawn party on Decoration Day will be one of the successes of the season if the day proves a pleasant one.

Under the direction of President Knox, the Seminary grounds have been somewhat improved during the past week.

Unless prevented by rain the Lawn Tennis Club will be out in force this afternoon. The grounds are in excellent condition.

The Delaware, Lackawanna and Western Railroad Company are placing patent safety guards at each crossing in Bloomfield and Montclair.

Mr. Lewis Dawkins appeared out on Wednesday with a newly painted and repaired delivery wagon. We really thought it was entirely new.

If money enough can be secured there is no doubt but that the fountain in the Centre will be an accomplished fact before the summer is over.

The next lecture in the Seminary Course will be on Keats. This lecture will be on Wednesday instead of Tuesday as heretofore announced.

Our pretty park has been trimmed and rolled, and in places where it needed it grass seed has been sown. The improvement in its beauty largely repays for the time spent in doing it.

Mr. Richard Conlan, of this place, was married to Miss Celestia O. Danley, of Morristown, on Thursday evening, at the home of the bride. They will make their home in Bloomfield.

A son of Mr. W. E. Barnes is lying low with pneumonia. A few days ago he was injured while out driving, and this, with a cold which he contracted, caused his present illness.

A Gypsy camp is located at Watseessing in the woods near the junction of Glenwood and Prospect avenues. In a few days they will move to Philadelphia, their next stopping place.

The Baptist Literary Society was to have held a meeting last Monday evening, which was the same evening chosen for Mr. Boole's lecture. The Literary meeting was postponed to some future date.

The thirty-second anniversary of the Baptist Sunday-school will be held to-morrow. Appropriate exercises will be given by the school. Mr. Charles Maxfield and others are expected to deliver addresses.

John Collin, employed by Mr. G. Lee Stout to look after his garden and stock, was leading a cow along Bloomfield avenue Wednesday, when she suddenly swung her head toward him, her horn catching Collin's cheek or nose, tearing it badly. He was taken home and the wound was dressed by Dr. Bennett.

Rev. S. W. Duffield is announced to deliver a lecture on "Chromancy, or the Science of the Hand," before the Westminster Society of Young People in Westminster Chapel, Friday, May 23, at 8 P. M. The tickets of admission are twenty-five cents, and the lecture will be illustrated by charts and diagrams.

The occupants of a carriage driven by Mr. Van Arsdale had a narrow escape on Thursday afternoon, at the Glenwood avenue crossing. Mr. V. was looking up the track and failed to see the express train until his horses were almost on the track. The marks of his wheels as he turned sharply were within three feet of the track. Van's ears must have been stuffed with cotton.

The national anniversary of the missionary society of the Baptist denomination, including home and foreign mission societies, and the Publication Society, will be held at Detroit, Mich., from May 21 to 27. The Christian Herald, a Baptist paper published in Detroit, will issue a daily paper entitled The Anniversary Herald, during the meetings. This paper will contain all the proceedings and general news relating to, and sketches of, the prominent men attending the Society. Rev. Ezra D. Simons, of this place, who conducted the reports and correspondence in such an able manner last year, will have charge of that department this year. He starts for Detroit on Monday.

—Mr. T. Winsor Langstroth and Miss Ella C. Earl were married on Thursday evening, at 5 P. M. The ceremony was performed at the residence of Mr. George Earl, on Liberty street, the home of the bride, Rev. H. W. Ballentine officiating. Mr. and Mrs. Langstroth will make their home on State street in one of the neat dwellings recently erected by Mrs. Jacobson.

—On Monday evening a number of members, together with the officers of the M. E. Church, gave a birthday surprise to Mr. Abel Baker, it being the 65th anniversary. A gold-headed cane was presented to Mr. Baker by the pastor, Rev. D. R. Lowrie, as coming from the congregation. Mr. Baker was greatly surprised, but recovered sufficiently to respond in a feeling manner to the pastor's remarks.

—We are requested to state that the Walter Farrand from Bloomfield who was last week convicted in the Court of Quarter Sessions of stealing a diamond pin from D. A. Newport, is not Mr. Walter M. Farrand of Franklin street. This explanation will not be needed for those who are acquainted with the last named gentleman, but he desires this statement for the information of the public, who may be ignorant of the fact that there is another party of that name in town.

—On Thursday evening at six o'clock Rev. D. R. Lowrie, of this place, officiated at the marriage ceremony of Miss Sarah E. Cooper and Frank L. Rhoades, at the residence of the bride's parents on Linden avenue. About twenty guests were present, including only the immediate relatives of each family. The bride was dressed in a handsome suit of plum colored silk, decorated with white roses and smilax. At seven o'clock an excellent wedding dinner was served, after which there was a reception, lasting until ten o'clock.

Seminary Lecture.

We take pleasure in chronicling an improvement in the Seminary weather. On Tuesday evening the audience succeeded in getting inside before it began to rain. A goodly number turned out to hear Mr. Duffield's skillful exposition of the life, character and poetry of Shelley. "The Poet of Doubts and Dreams." Discussing the life of Shelley with the intention of exhibiting him in a true light is to sail one's bark in dangerous seas. The lecturer, with a sure hand, treated the difficult way with safety and success. The audience at the close could fully understand these key-note words of the wreck and unutterable sadness of the poet's life:

Alas! I have no hope nor health,
Nor peace within nor calm around;
Nor that content, surpassing wealth,
The sage in meditation found.
And walked with inward glory crowned:
Nor fame nor power nor love nor leisure.
Others I see whom these surround—
Smiling they live and call life pleasure;
To me that cup has been dealt in another measure.

Shelley was heir to one of the finest properties in England, and had the misfortune to have money to publish everything he wrote. His father and family represented the highly respectable religions of that day, and his reckless crusade against God was not against the God we know, but one of very different attributes. With better teaching how different might his life have been.

His defence of atheism while at college was so persistently urged that the authorities were compelled to expel him. His father was outraged and cast him out. This was bad enough, but to make matters worse a foolish woman inveigled him into a marriage, wherein there was neither love nor respect. The result, separation. But evil influences seemed to be his fate, for the Godwins received and "comforted" him. The morals of this family were as mixed as their relationship. One of the daughters fell in love with Shelley and his prospects. To those who held that virtue and morality were but symbols of slavery, a wife was a small obstacle, and so they went off together. They were eventually married, and lived abroad till death separated them. These Godwins were a millstone about Shelley's neck.

He had many a noble trait. He was unselfish to a fault. But he was utterly lawless. He would not submit to any restraint. His poetry represents genius and inspiration, but more's the pity, no method, no work. Elsewhere will be found "Fragments from Shelley," and in marked contrast the "Lark," by James Hogg. In our opinion the description of the contest in mid-air between the eagle and the serpent was the finest selection, but it is too long to quote.

Temperance.

The services at the meeting of the Reform Club a week ago were general in character. In the absence of any outside speakers, members of the club were called upon to give recitations and make addresses. This step was on the line of progress, pointing to development on the part of the club. On Sunday afternoon the meeting was favored with an address and singing by Prof. Pearsall of Montclair.

But the chief temperance event of the week was the lecture by Rev. W. H. Boole of Brooklyn. Opinion is divided as to the comparative merits of the address of Monday night at the First Presbyterian Church and the lecture given a few weeks ago at Library Hall. But there is no division of judgment as to the real excellence of either of these efforts of Mr. Boole. On Monday night his remarks were clear and forcible. He moved on straight lines of fact, truth and logic to the conclusion he sought. His subject, "The Liquor Traffic, the commercial and financial fraud on the nation," was treated in a masterly manner. Although, again, he occupied almost two hours, he received unwearied attention from the large audience. He contrasted some of the industries of the nation with the liquor traffic, and demonstrated plainly that the last does not merit to be classed with legitimate trades, and ought, because of the losses it inflicted (these by far outweighing any nominal gain through revenue), to be blotted out by constitutional prohibition. In pointing out the remedy for the evil he favored a third party, if existing parties refused to allow an expression of the people at the polls against the sale of alcohol as a beverage.

Essex Co. Teachers' Association.

The regular meeting of the Essex County Teachers' Association, held in Newark on Saturday morning, was largely attended. The annual election was held, and the following officers were chosen for the ensuing year: President, Geo. O. F. Taylor, of Newark; Vice-President, J. P. Dunbar, of Bloomfield; Secretary and Treasurer, P. W. Lyon, of Belleville; Executive Committee, Randall Spaulding, of Montclair; J. A. Hallock, of Newark; V. J. Davey, of East Orange; Miss A. H. Dodd, of West Orange; Miss Mary N. Field, of Orange. An interesting discussion on physiology, its importance and how it should be taught, followed.

Temperance School.

The Bloomfield Juvenile Temperance School was organized May 3d, 1884, by Mrs. M. G. Baldwin, Sup't of Juvenile Work in Temperance Schools. It was a very pleasant and encouraging surprise to see so large a number of children gathered together, and the interest manifested by them in the new work. The second meeting was held May 10th. The interest shown by the children at the previous meeting had not abated, about the same number being present.

The Fountain.

The proposed park and fountain that are to be constructed in a portion of our town, now inexpressibly unattractive, have suggested the accompanying poem. The possibilities for the "Centre" are therein pictured so clearly that we can already feel the parched August atmosphere cooled by the sparkling spray. We can see the diamond like drops flashing—

"Into the sunlight,
Into the moonlight."
Tired man and beast refresh themselves with cooling draughts, and, standing beside the sward, we can already hear—
"The murmur that springs
From the growing of grass."

It is hoped that the imagery contained in these verses will create an increasing interest, thereby enlarging the number of subscribers and the amount of subscriptions for necessary expense in the construction of the park and fountain.

THE FOUNTAIN.
Into the sunshine,
Full of light,
Leaping and flashing
From morn to night.
Into the moonlight,
Whiter than snow,
Waving so flower-like
When the winds blow.
Into the starlight,
Rushing in spray,
Happy at midnight,
Happy by day.
Ever in motion,
Blissome and cheery,
Still climbing heavenward
Never weary.
Glad of all weathers,
Still seeming best,
Upward or downward
Motion thy rest.
Full of a nature
Nothing can tame;
Changed every moment,
Ever the same.
Ceaseless, aspiring;
Ceaseless, content,
Darkness or sunshine
Thy element.
Glorious fountain!
Let my heart be
Fresh, changeful, constant,
Upward, like thee.

—James Russell Lowell.

"Young man," said the landlord, "I always eat the cheese rind." And the new boarder replied: "Just so; I am leaving this for you."

A Broken Stone Road

FOR BROAD STREET.

It is a settled fact that some other material than the gravel at present used must be selected to make BROAD STREET a good road at all times of the year.

In consequence of the heavy travel Broad Street finds its "bottom" every spring. The remedying of this is in the use of BROKEN STONE, and should be laid as follows:

First, a layer of Broken Trap, ranging in size from 1 1/2 to 3 inch cubes, laid 6 feet wide and 3 inches deep.
Then, a layer from 1/2 to 1 1/2 inch cubes, making a road, when finished, 12 feet wide 6 inches deep in centre and 2 inches at the sides.
This can be increased to 14 feet wide 8 inches in the centre and 2 inches at the side if desired.
The first can be laid at a cost of not over 60 cents a running foot, and the second at not over 60 cents a running foot.

As this is not much in excess of what it has cost to lay the same quantity of gravel, which wears out every year, the experiment is worth trying. The undersigned stands ready to compete for the work. No road should be built or material bought without such public competition. No special preparation is necessary except the establishment of the Grade.

For any further information desired about Broken Stone, Gravel or Sand, inquire of

THE FOREMOST REPUBLICAN NEWSPAPER

FOR THE PRESIDENTIAL YEAR, 1884.

Weekly Press, - - - $1.00 a Year.

Daily Press, - - - $6.00 a Year.

The coming year will be notable. Congress, divided between a Republican Senate and a Democratic House, will be busy President-making. The great battle of Protection against Free Trade will agitate the Capital and the country. The Presidential campaign will be the hardest fought and most exciting political struggle for a quarter of a century. Europe, in the opinion of the best informed, trembles on the eve of a great war.

With such an outlook a live newspaper which prints all the news and tells the whole truth about it is more than ever a necessity. Such a newspaper is THE PRESS. The Press is a daily newspaper in its own office place in its instantaneous communication with a corps of over five hundred news-gatherers distributed all over the civilized world. The special daily cable service which it shares with the New York Herald covers every phase of activity in European life. No paper excels it in all the elements which go to make up a broad, full, complete journal.

Besides being a complete newspaper, THE PRESS has several special features which put it at the top. The AGRICULTURAL DEPARTMENT, enriched by constant contributions from the foremost writers in various branches, gives the practical things that people want to know on the farm and in the garden. The HELPS TO LIVE FOR WOMEN or HOME DEPARTMENT, edited by Mrs. Kate Upson Clark, is full of information, hints and happy thoughts for every wife, mother and head of a household.

A great feature of the coming year will be the highly valuable letters of HENRY D. WEEKS on Wages of Working-men, the general conditions of Labor and the Cost of Living in Europe as compared with America. Mr. Weeks, who has charge of the subject for the month of 1884, has made it a life study, and has been abroad this year conducting a special investigation. His letters will give the facts as to conditions in all the various industries, the purchasing power of wages, strikes, trades-unions, arbitration, etc.

THE WEEKLY PRESS is full of choice home reading with puzzles and other matters for the little folks, stories and pastimes for adults and children, fashion notes, recipes, gleanings from current literature, a careful summary of domestic and foreign news, and an earnest discussion of the great questions of the day.
